The Municipal Police Institute, Inc. (MPI) is a private, nonprofit charitable affiliate of the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Association. MPI provides training and model policies and procedures for police agencies. This policy is an edited version of MPI Policy 2.09, "Dead Bodies."

GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS AND GUIDELINES

Death can be classified into five categories:

1. Lawful homicide (lawful self-defense, by soldier in time of combat, etc.);
2. Unlawful homicide (murder, if malice is present or legally inferable, manslaughter if the element of malice is not present; although provocation is in no way the equivalent of justification, such as lawful self-defense);
3. Suicide;
4. Accidental death; and
5. Natural death.

Although it is the function of the police to determine whether any crime may have been committed which caused or contributed to the death of a human being, the medical, scientific and forensic training and expertise needed to determine the cause of any death necessitates that the Medical Examiner play a major role in this process. The General Laws prescribe the duties and authority of the Medical Examiner in relation to taking charge of the body of the deceased, conducting searches and examinations and providing for the removal and disposition of the body.¹ In addition, the same statute defines the role and responsibility of the District Attorney's office in these circumstances.

It is the policy of the Lexington Police Department to:

- Preserve dead bodies until the Medical Examiner authorizes removal, preserve surrounding environs for possible crime scene investigation and make all appropriate notifications promptly; and
- Diligently pursue all appropriate investigations into criminal activity surrounding a death.
